Belize Company Formation

Belize Companies are commonly used for offshore banking, to conduct international trade, investment activities, and for asset protection. Offshore companies can be involved in buying and selling goods and services, holding bank accounts, trading accounts and investment accounts, and operation of businesses. Offshore companies are also commonly used for the ownership of real estate property and land; for offshore investments and effective financial planning; personal service by individuals working overseas and offshore e-business. In all other respects an offshore corporation can perform practically any function an ordinary corporation can perform.
